Travis wasn't born with the skills that he needs to become a helicopter pilot, but he knew where to go for such skills. In high school, he attended a NACTEC session on Small Engines.

NACTEC helped Travis focus on his goals and gain more skills he needed to achieve them. At NACTEC, he learned discipline through a structured routine and gained confidence while conquering new challenges.

Now Travis is traveling the world in the military to regions nearly as remote as his home. Follow in his footsteps and make NACTEC a first step on your own career ladder.
